Move Out Tips 101

PCSing can be a stressful process for military families, but the OMC team is here to make the transition as smooth as possible for our military families. If your family is about make a big move, here are some policies and procedures to be aware of:

- Give your Resident Services Office at least 28-day notice prior to your move
- Residents must give their notice to vacate in-person at their respective Resident Services Office
- Bring a copy of your PCS orders to the office when giving notice so OMC will have firm dates to work with
- Schedule a pre-move out inspection with your Resident Services Specialist
- Don't forget to set up an appointment to ship your household goods
- If the service member's spouse will be handling the move out, make sure you have completed the proper power of attorney paperwork with the Legal Assistance Office
- Remember your power of attorney needs to state privatized housing and not government housing

For more information regarding move-out policies and procedures, contact your Resident Services Office.

Please Don't Feed the Chickens!

Many people enjoy feeding wildlife. Often, they think they are helping the animals survive, but unfortunately, they could not be more incorrect. For centuries, these animals have existed without our need to feed them. This is still the case. While feeding the animals can be fun for humans, it is usually detrimental for the animals and potentially other humans. The following information will explain this more thoroughly:

1. When wild animals begin to depend on humans for food, their hunting skills may diminish and they can become incapable at finding their own food, making the chickens less likely to survive.
2. Wild animals that are used to being fed by humans commonly lose their fear of people.
3. Animals (like humans!) are opportunistic and will go for the most convenient food source available. Who doesn't like a free meal? When food is readily available, animals will gather in abnormally large numbers.
4. Your neighbors, children, or visitors could be deathly allergic to the food items you are feeding to the wildlife. We would like to remind everyone that feeding wild animals, including our beloved chickens, is not a safe practice for people, pets or wild animals.

Please help the wildlife by enjoying them from a distance, their lives depend on it.
